Volk Protective Products to Offer Full Brass Knuckle® Line

Brass Knuckle innovative protective products complete Volk disposable offering

COLUMBUS, OH—March 16, 2016—Volk Protective Products, a provider of high quality, cost-effective barrier protection products, is pleased to announce a global supply partnership with Brass Knuckle® products. Brass Knuckle, recently added to the Volk family of companies, is an independent manufacturer of personal protective products and sells through distribution to the industrial, construction and safety sectors. As sister companies in the expanding Volk safety portfolio, Volk Protective Products is now able to offer its foodservice, janitorial, sanitation, and custodial customers high value on Brass Knuckle eye protection, hand protection, protective clothing, ergonomic gear and more.

D.P.A. Buying Group distributors are now able to leverage Volk Protective Products' supply partnership to augment their barrier protection purchasing to build a more complete personal protective wear collection for all employees. Volk Protective Products singular supply partnership creates one stop shopping—reducing shipping costs, consolidating bid support, and simplifying product training.

Brass Knuckle is a safety equipment manufacturer focused on user and distributor satisfaction with global manufacturing experience and knowledge that ensures worker safety at the right price. Every Brass Knuckle product blends ergonomics, protection and cost efficiency to maximize compliance and safety. Each product in the Brass Knuckle line meets high standards of quality, resulting in a premium line of products.

As a dedicated supplier of disposable gloves and other personal barrier products for the foodservice and janitorial industries, Volk Protective Products focuses on providing top-quality disposables to protect both the public and employees. All Volk family products are continually and routinely tested for promised strength and integrity and meet the highest standards of quality.
